Notes:
In addition to the costs listed above, UNL Tuition & Fees will be billed by UNL Student Accounts in the Spring semester, based on your status as an undergraduate and resident/non-resident student.

This course will likely be designated a "Field Course." As a result, the same tuition rate will be assessed for resident and non-resident students and the Distance Education Fee will be charged.

Program Cost includes: Round-trip Airfare, Lodging, in-country transportation, some meals, seminars and excursions, international health insurance, and program support.

Special Note: This program is a special initiative and is heavily subsidized. As a result, students are not eligible for Education Abroad specific scholarships. However, students are able to contact the appropriate representatives in regards to UNL scholarships to help pay for tuition and fees.

Payment Schedule for Billable Costs:
December 11, 2015- Deposit: $200 to Education Abroad Office
February 12, 2015 - Final Balance due on MyRED student account

Course of Study
Through this 7-day program set in Belize City and San Ignacio, Belize, students will get an opportunity to experience traveling abroad and learning the value of international education. Through this program, participants will be able to understand the socio-cultural, political, economic, linguistic, and historic experiences of Belize as an ancient and modern nation. Participants will also be able to understand the rich history of ancient and modern Mesoamerican cultures and its peoples through reading and exploring historical, archaeological and contemporary sites. Lastly, participants will gain an insight into the benefits of international education.

Eligibility
All students must be enrolled as a freshman at UNL during the application process and complete at least 12 credits by the start of the program.

Additional required qualifications are 1) a GPA of 2.75 or higher, and 2) student must not have participated in an organized education abroad program in the past.
