

For years, people have said that baseball is America's favorite sport. The game of baseball is over fifty years old. Most people know there are nine players on a team. There is a pitcher, a catcher, four infielders, and three outfielders. The game of baseball is played in a large grassy area shaped like a diamond. Each corner or point on the diamond is called base. The object of the game is get at least one player on base and then by hitting a ball without being caught, move the player to the next base. When the player touches all four bases, he has scored a run. The team who makes the most runs wins the game.
