Berlin

Berlin has many historical and other interesting facets which you will want to explore. Among them are the Reichstag, two opera houses, a soccer stadium, and the Wannsee. You will also be able to visit the Berlin Wall Museum at the former Checkpoint Charlie, see the Kreuzberg and Prenzlauer Berg (areas famed for their alternative life-styles), tour the Charlottenburg Palace and see the extensive displays at the Botanical Gardens and the Berlin Zoo. Berlin is also well known for its many other museums of art and history as well as its world-class musical ensembles and theaters. Berlin ranks amongst the world's most interesting cities, and you will have no lack of fun things to do and see in your free time. The program arranges many excursions within the city but also schedules a few day trips to Potsdam and Dresden, which are included in the program's costs.

Resident Director

UNL Professor Priscilla Hayden-Roy will serve as resident director of the program. She will teach two courses and stay with the group through early June and help facilitate the internships and the university program. If you have not traveled abroad before, this is a perfect opportunity to start with a faculty member you know or will get to know very well, and who will be accessible to you.

Courses of Study

German language courses: The intensive language program is for undergraduates. No previous knowledge of German is necessary for participation in the program. After initial testing, both at UNL and in Berlin, students will be placed according to their proficiency. A contemporary German Civilization course, taught by the resident director will round off the program. In part 2 of the program, advanced students can take regular classes at the universities after successful completion of the language requirements.

Academic Credits

For the 4 months language and culture courses 20 credit hours can be transferred (pre-arranged). Intermediate students who take three months of language and culture can earn 16 credit hours in addition to hours earned as a visiting student at a German university in the second phase of the program. This credit is transferable by UNL department validation.

Internships

Internships in your major can be arranged if known by October 1. Internships include working at a German newspaper, high school, bank, etc. Internships usually do not grant pay or credit.

Living Arrangements

Participants live with families in the center and suburbs of Berlin and have breakfast and dinner (cold) there. Lunch can be bought at a student cafeteria.

Type of Program

The UNL-sponsored program is arranged and administered by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. Selection for the program is made by the Department of Modern Languages, College of Arts and Sciences. Students pay program costs directly to UNL and remain eligible for most scholarships and other forms of financial aid they normally receive.

Scholarships

A limited number of scholarships (up to $500) are available from the Department of Modern Languages, 1111 Oldfather, Lincoln, NE 68588-0315, 402/472-3745.

The Christian Lieder Scholarship and Fellowship offers scholarships up to $3000. Applications are available on the International Affairs website and due October 1.

Register Now

Early reservations are recommended, since group size is limited and this program requires preparation time. Upon receiving your registration, we will send you further details about the program.

Application

You will need Form A (bio-data), Form B (statement of purpose), Form C (one reference) and an official transcript. Forms are available at the following website www.unl.edu/iaffairs or International Affairs or the Dept. of Modern Languages.
