STANTON COUNTY, NEBRASKA

(It) lies in the northeastern part of the state. It has 4,611 inhabitants. Stanton, along the Elkhorn River, is the county seat. The county not long ago was only inhabited by half while vast lands were owned by eastern associations who of course, held the lands waiting to attain higher prices for the land.

Along the Elkhorn River the land is partly sandy. but not far away there is no sand, the soil is very fertile. Cost of land is around $12 to $25 an acre. Price according to the lay of the land and how far or near it is to a town.

The Czechs as a whole live near the border of Colfax County. They number themselves as one in a community of market places, post office and their own business. The Czech settlement near the postoffice of Haymow, are mostly from Dodge and Cumming Counties, moving from the older locality.

Land for sale is plentiful, whole sections marked with a star on the map is for sale. Price is unknown. J.J. Mundila returned to the Clarkson postoffice in which capacity he is well remembered.

			The information was overlooked

This ends Nebraska, with the scraping of rails, on 28 November 1893, between Kansas City and Wilson, Kansas, that you find out that I am on the train and that I tried to proceed with fully recording the remaining counties yet before publishing. They haven't time for me as I ride all the roads, and then find they have nothing, nothing at all for me. Neither have I great information from Kansas. My job is done writing here for publishing. Perhaps at a later time, maybe later on, I will gather county information from Nebraska to the end.
