Editorial Office and CPP Board

The 2019 volume of Criminology & Public Policy (CPP) will be the sixth and last under our editorship. The journal’s editorial and manuscript submission and review office is located at the Florida State University’s College of Criminology and Criminal Justice. The College provides office space and equipment for the journal’s activities where the managing editor, L. Sergio Garduno, coordinates the reviews and the production processes of manuscripts submitted to the journal. The journal’s special events and special issues office is located at the Carnegie Mellon University. The appointed Editorial Board serves multiple roles as reviewers, senior editors, and policy essayists.

Current Status of Journal

To date, Volumes 13, 14, 15, 16, 17 and the first issue of Volume 18 have been published under our editorship.

CPP’s ISI Impact Factor for the 2017 year is 2.216, and its five year impact factor is 2.348. These impact factors increased from 2016, which were 1.419 and 1.691, respectively. The journal’s ISI Impact Factor for the 2018 year will be published in the summer of 2019.

The number of CPP’s articles downloaded decreased from 169,533 in 2017 to 161,389 in 2018, an annual decrease of 4.80%.

The Table of Contents for the 2018 Volume of CPP (Vol. 17, Issues 1, 2, 3 and 4) can be found in Appendix 1 of this report. The Table of Contents for the February and the May 2019 issues (Vol. 18, Issue 1 and 2), and the preliminary Table of Contents for the August 2019 issue of CPP (Vol. 18, Issues 3) can be found in Appendix 2 of this report.

CPP Special Issue 2018

The 2018 May Special Issue celebrated and analyzed the 50th anniversary of the U.S. President’s Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration of Justice (commonly known as the President’s Crime Commission, 1967). This Special Issue was coordinated by Dr. Cynthia Lum and Ted Gest. This issue comprised 14 research articles that analyzed a variety of subjects relevant to President’s Crime Commission, including changes in juvenile justice, courts, sentencing, narcotics, and firearms.
Journal Distribution

The number of institutions across the globe that have access to CPP via either a Wiley License or a traditional subscription increased from 5,415 in 2017 to 5,966 in 2018 (an increase of 10.17%). Regions and countries that have increased their number of CPP’s institutional sales include Australia, China, Japan, the United Kingdom, the United States, and Europe. Countries and regions in which CPP’s institutional sales decreased from last year include Canada.¹

Marketing

Caitlin Kizielewicz, from Crime and Justice Research Alliance, has promoted CPP’s research papers with over 450 reporters. Reporters interested in CPP’s research articles have mentioned these articles in diverse media outlets, including Polifact California, Los Angeles Times, The Crime Report, and The Orange County Register. Media reports have reached thousands of followers on Twitter and millions on Facebook.

Ted Gest maintains a contact list of more than 500 journalists throughout the country who are interested in criminological research and public policy.

Thanks to Editors William Bales and Daniel Nagin’s work and leadership, Wiley, our publisher, continues to grant open access to reporters interested in CPP’s articles so they can read them and talk about them in the media.

Current Status of Manuscripts

Up to September of 2018, Criminology & Public Policy had received 50 manuscripts, compared to 56 manuscripts received in 2017 during the same period (10.7% decrease). Of the manuscripts received in 2018 under our editorship, 11 were accepted and already published. The remaining submissions were desk-rejected (31) or were rejected after going through a blind peer review process (8). CPP’s acceptance rate up to September 2018 was 22%, compared to 5.23% during the same period in 2017.

The February 2019 issue of CPP (Vol. 18, Issue 1) was comprised of five regular research papers. The following issues will be Special Issues. The May 2019 issue will be on Privatized Corrections and will be coordinated by Drs. Daniel P. Mears and Andrea N. Montes. The August 2019 issue will be on Improving Police Effectiveness in Ensuring Justice and will be coordinated by Drs. Anthony A. Braga and John MacDonald. The November 2019 issue will be on Behavioral Economics in Criminal Justice and will be coordinated by Dr. Greg Pogarsky.

As of September 2018 CPP’s incoming Editors, Dr. Cynthia Lum and Christopher Koper started reviewing new submissions to the journal. Manuscripts accepted by them will be published during their editorial term starting December 2019.
