Nebraska Writing Project
Professional Writing Retreat

Would you like time to work toward publication with guidance from an expert?

NeWP Professional Writing Retreat supports one of NWP’s founding principles: teachers of writing should write. The retreat highlights the value of teachers writing about their practice and creates the time and support for this work. Writing from the retreat will find its way into local, regional, and national publications, making visible the beliefs and practices of writing project teachers to a broad audience.

Join us for a Professional Writing Retreat that will support teachers in writing about their practice. Teachers will develop their professional writing with guidance from experts in the field who will mentor teachers’ working toward publication.

This retreat will focus on professional writing, such as:

› Classroom case studies
› Writing about inservice programs
› Narratives of school/teaching life
› Annotated professional bibliographies
› Opinion pieces about issues in the teaching of writing

When: July 27-29, 2016
Where: St. Benedict Center
Schuyler, NE

Cost: $250 for two nights, three days  single occupancy room and meals

APPLY HERE BY May 1st, 2016:
http://nebraskawritingproject.org/newp-events/professional-writing-retreat/
OR MAIL YOUR APPLICATION TO:
Nebraska Writing Project  English-UNL
202 Andrews Hall
Lincoln, NE 68588-0333
Professional Writing Retreat Facilitators

Jane Connealy
NeWP CoDirector 2003-2006, currently Satellite Seminar Coordinator for the Memorial Library/Holocaust Educators Network, facilitator for the last NeWP Professional Writing Retreat. janeconnealy3@gmail.com

Maggie Christensen
Acting Writing Program Administrator, University of Nebraska-Omaha, and incoming Director of Oxbow Writing Project. Published in Kairos and College English, and editor of From the Heartland: Critical Reading and Writing at UNO. mchristensen@unomaha.edu

Robert Brooke
Director, Nebraska Writing Project, and Professor of English, University of Nebraska-Lincoln. Author of 5 books and over 50 articles, and book series editor 1997-2007 for Studies in Writing and Rhetoric. Forthcoming book 2015 (with 8 NeWP contributors): Writing Suburban Citizenship: Place Conscious Education and the Conundrum of Suburbia (Syracuse UP). rbrooke1@unl.edu

Cathie English
Cathie English Assistant Professor of English, Missouri State University, and Co-Director of the Ozarks Writing Project. Facilitator for NWP New Site Leadership Institutes 2005-2008. Creator and Facilitator of the NWP Technology Professional Writing Retreat, 2005-2007. Published in The Quarterly, English Journal, and The Voice. cathieenglish78@gmail.com