

Contents

Introduction—Joshua C. Thurow and Albert Casullo	1
Section I: Intuitions, Experimental Philosophy, and the A Priori
1. Alvin I. Goldman, “Philosophical Naturalism and Intuitional Methodology”	11
2. Jonathan Jenkins Ichikawa, “Experimental Philosophy and Apriority”	45
3. Joshua C. Thurow, “The Implicit Conception and Intuition Theory of the a Priori, with Implications for Experimental Philosophy”	67
4. Jonathan M. Weinberg, “The Prospects for an Experimentalist Rationalism, or Why It’s Ok if the A Priori Is Only 99.44 Percent Empirically Pure”	92
Section II: The Nature and Scope of the A Priori
5. David Henderson and Terry Horgan, “On the Armchair Justification of Conceptually Grounded Necessary Truths”	111
6. Christopher S. Hill, “Concepts, Teleology, and Rational Revision”	134
7. Anna-Sara Malmgren, “A Priori Testimony Revisited”	158
8. Ernest Sosa, “Intuitions and Foundations: The Relevance of Moore and Wittgenstein”	186
Section III: Skepticism and the A Priori
9. Joel Pust, “Skepticism, Reason, and Reidianism”	205
10. Ralph Wedgwood, “ A Priori Bootstrapping”	226
Section IV: Challenges to the A Priori
11. Albert Casullo, “Articulating the A Priori–A Posteriori Distinction”	249
12. C. S. I. Jenkins, “Naturalistic Challenges to the A Priori”	274
13. Timothy Williamson, “How Deep is the Distinction between A Priori and A Posteriori Knowledge?”	291
Index	313