

The Tenth Annual
Chambers Philosophy Conference
Epistemic Norms and Social Norms
April 13-14, 2018
University of Nebraska-Lincoln
David Henderson and Kareem Khalifa, co-directors

Friday, April 13, 2018

Breakfast	8:30-9:15
Kareem Khalifa (Middlebury College), "Socializing the aims of Science." Chair: Reina Hayaki (University of Nebraska-Lincoln)	9:15-10:45
David Henderson (University of Nebraska) and Terry Horgan (University of Arizona), "Are Epistemic Norms Fundamentally Social Norms?" Chair: William Melanson (University of Nebraska Omaha)	11:00-12:30
Lunch	12:30-2:15
Sinan Dogramaci (University of Texas), "The Ordinary Language Response to Skepticism---Pragmatized." Chair: Peter Graham (University of California, Riverside)	2:15-3:45
Christina Bicchieri (University of Pennsylvania), "It's not a Lie if you Believe it: Self-deception and Ambiguous Norms." Chair: Lizzie Fricker (Notre Dame)	4:00-5:30

Saturday, April 14, 2018

Breakfast	8:30-9:15
Alessandra Tanesini (Cardiff University), "Epistemic Norms and the Second Person." Chair: Terry Horgan (University of Arizona)	9:15-10:45
Kevin Zollman (Carnegie Mellon University), "Public goods and epistemic governance." Chair: Aaron Bronfman (University of Nebraska-Lincoln)	11:12:30
Lunch	12:30-2:15
Sandy Goldberg (Northwestern) "A social approach to epistemic normativity: the programme." Chair: John Greco (Saint Louis University)	2:15-3:45
Michael Tomasello (Max Plank Institute and Duke University), "Cooperation and Human Cognition." Chair: Albert Casullo (University of Nebraska-Lincoln)	4:00-5:30
Conference Reception, 2557 Van Dorn St., David Henderson and Marianne McHann's home	8:30-9:00

All sessions in Bailey Library, Andrews Hall Room 228/229 unless otherwise indicated