Welcome to Nebraska!

Dear Fellows:

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln welcomes you to the 2022 Fulbright English for Graduate Studies Program (EGSP). We are excited to have you on our campus and look forward to showing you all that Lincoln and Nebraska have to offer. During our four weeks together, you will develop skills and knowledge that will promote future success in your graduate degree programs.

Our program seamlessly combines language training, workshops, and co-curricular activities that will help you improve your language proficiency, academic skills, and increase your knowledge of the United States. We are pleased to have secured the participation of an impressive and diverse cohort of UNL faculty representing distinct academic disciplines, campus administrative leaders, staff, as well as numerous local and regional civic organizations.

We look forward to welcoming you to Lincoln, Nebraska, and to embarking on this exciting journey together!

Director, Programs in English as a Second Language
University of Nebraska-Lincoln
Program Overview

Welcome to the Fulbright English for Graduate Studies Program proudly hosted by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln (UNL) and Programs in English as a Second Language (PIESL). We are very excited to have you join us in Lincoln, Nebraska this summer. We have prepared an exciting and rigorous pre-academic program that will help you prepare for your new life as a graduate student in the United States. This program book provides you with detailed information that you will need during your stay. If you should have any questions about the information in this book or any other concerns, please contact the Program Assistant, Juliee Crocker, or Program Director, Chris Dunsmore, in the PIESL main office (Nebraska Hall, room 514).

The Fulbright English for Graduate Studies Program includes:

- Speech communication classes that will help you actively participate in classroom discussions with confidence as well as give effective presentations in English
- Writing classes where you will learn about and practice the different types of writing expected of graduate students as well as how to conduct research using internet and library resources and avoid plagiarism
- Overview of culture in the United States, including the higher education system, that will help you adapt to your new environment
- Networking opportunities with UNL graduate students and faculty
- Opportunities to meet local community members
- Seminars and lectures on a variety of topics that will help with your transition to graduate studies in the United States
- Field trips and cultural outings

The program agenda provides daily information about academic sessions, site visits, community service activities, and cultural experiences. During the program, you will expand your knowledge of English and culture in the United States. The detailed syllabus that outlines assignments, attendance, and grading policies will be provided on the first day of English classes.

Academic Session Presenters and Guest Speakers

Dr. Lawrence Chatters
Senior Associate Athletic Director for Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion

Dr. Lawrence Chatters currently serves as the Executive Associate Athletic Director for Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion at Nebraska, and oversees the Department's efforts in those respective areas while also serving as a senior administrator advising the Director of Athletics. Chatters also serves as the secondary sport administrator for the men's and women's cross country and track and field programs. Chatters was hired for this newly created role in July of 2021. Most recently, Chatters served as Vice President of Student Affairs at Midland University and as the school's Chief Diversity Officer. Chatters oversaw residential life, mental health, student health and the academic success center on campus, and he was responsible for creating and implementing strategic initiatives to bring inclusive change on campus and in the community. He previously spent six years at Nebraska, working in a wide range of capacities, including positions within Nebraska Athletics as the Diversity and Inclusion Coordinator, and in the UNL Women's Center as the Men's Program Coordinator. He holds a Ph.D (2018) and a Masters' degree (2014) in counseling psychology from UNL.

Charles Braithwaite
Research Assistant Professor, Center for Great Plains Studies

Dr. Braithwaite is a Research Assistant Professor at the Center for Great Plains Studies and a Senior Lecturer in Communications Studies at UNL. He teaches courses in intercultural communication, conflict management, interviewing, and nonverbal communication for the Department of Communication Studies. Dr. Braithwaite also directs the “Global Classroom Project,” which uses the commercial internet to have live, synchronous video classes between Nebraska and universities in Costa Rica, Japan, Russia, and Turkey. His international experience includes serving as a North Vietnamese interpreter for U.S. Naval Intelligence and studying international business communication along the U.S./Mexican border. Dr. Braithwaite has a special interest in American Indian higher education, and had conducted research on the Navajo Nation, and among the U-Mo'n-Ho'n (Omaha), the Ho-Chunk (Winnebago) tribes of Nebraska.

Karen Cagley
Director, International Student and Scholar Office, UNL

Karen’s role is to manage the ISSO to effectively provide support and services to international students, scholars and UNL departments and colleges by providing information to international students and scholars to help them maintain their immigration status and by assisting university departments with immigration related matters in order to hire and retain international faculty and staff. Her expertise includes advising regarding immigration classifications that relate to international students and scholars (F-1, J-1, and H-1B). Karen is the lead staff member for developing policies and procedures, maintaining the university’s compliance with federal regulations related to immigration and coordination of data management. Prior to joining UNL in 1999, Karen was an International Student and Scholar Advisor at the University of Nebraska at Omaha (UNO). Karen has been active in the field of international education and has served on the NAFSA: Association of International Educators Region II team as Community Section Representative and as Region II Chair, has been a member of the NAFSA Trainer Corps, has served on the Local Arrangement Team for Regional Conference and has presented on various topics at regional and national conferences. Karen holds a Bachelor of Arts in Business Administration from Wartburg College and a Masters of Business Administration from the University of Nebraska at Omaha. She has travelled to Canada, Mexico, France, England, Hong Kong, China, Philippines, and Japan.
Theresa Catalano
Associate Professor, College of Education and Human Sciences, UNL

Dr. Catalano’s research focuses on language teacher education and migration (including intercultural education and arts integration), and the connection of language and visual communication to ideology, power and social inequality. Dr. Catalano’s book, “Talking about global migration: Implications for language teaching” (Multilingual Matters, 2016), features the stories of migrants from around the world and takes an in-depth look at the metaphors used when migrants talk about their experiences. Her recent book with Linda Waugh Critical Discourse Analysis, Critical Discourse Studies and Beyond (Springer, 2020) introduces CDA/CDS, its important foundational concepts and theories, and traces its development from its early years until it became established. After the relationship between CDA and CDS is discussed, seven commonly cited approaches to CDA/CDS are outlined followed by an overview of critique of CDA/CDS and salient connections to other interdisciplinary areas of scholarship. The final chapter describes how scholars use their knowledge of CDA/CDS to make a difference in the world.
