Programs in English as a Second Language

The Programs in English as a Second Language (PIESL) at Nebraska support non-native speakers of English with a wide range of language and cultural learning opportunities in a safe and inclusive environment. Our students and visiting scholars achieve their personal, academic, and professional language learning goals through rigorous and innovative curricula in small classrooms with individualized instruction taught by expert faculty. PIESL offerings include the Intensive English Program, Online English Program, Credit English for Academic Purposes Program, and Customized Training Programs.

Online English Program

The Online English Program (OEP) is for English language learners who wish to improve communication for personal or academic/career goals but cannot attend in-person classes.

Program highlights include:

- Three levels of study - intermediate to advanced;
- Real instructors lead both synchronous and asynchronous class sessions through video conferencing and Canvas LMS.
- 16 hours of core-curriculum classes per week;
- Classes in speaking & listening, reading, & writing, and grammar;
- Completion of program meets University language requirements for academic study
- Virtual events and activities;
- Access to university support services.
- Part-time study available

Credit English for Academic Purposes Program

The Credit English for Academic Purposes (CEAP) Program is for conditionally admitted undergraduate students with advanced English language proficiency. Students focus on improving language skills to ensure success in academic degree programs. The program can be taken in-person or online. Successful program completion guarantees full admission to UNL without TOEFL or IELTS scores.

Program allows for students to:

- Earn college credit for English as a second language (ESL) courses;
- All courses are credit-bearing, University courses;
- Participate in a seminar about university policies, support services, and resources;
- Receive individualized support from advisers and specialized success coaches to improve study skills; and
- Attend cultural events and activities.

Online Customized Training Programs

PIESL hosts and administers numerous Customized Training Programs (CTP) throughout the year for partner universities, high schools, and other organizations around the world. Curricula and program length are designed to meet the particular needs of each group, and can be delivered in-person or online. Contact us for a cost proposal.

Specialized programmatic options include:

- Academic English preparation;
- Language and culture in the United States;
- Leadership training for non-native English speakers;
- English for special purposes, including Business, Agriculture, and Law;
- Service-learning and community engagement in the United States;
- Test preparation (TOEFL, IELTS, TOEIC); and
- Teacher training for English as a second or foreign language.
