“AIDS Knows No Borders”: Activist Rhetoric Against the US Ban on HIV+ Immigration

Karma R. Chávez, Associate Professor
University of Wisconsin, Madison

This lecture will examine the AIDS activist rhetoric used to challenge US immigration law during the 1990 and 1992 International AIDS Conferences. Their strategies offer insight into the function of rhetoric in building transnational coalitions. Their strategies also illustrate the uniqueness of AIDS activist rhetoric during a time when AIDS was, for most, a death sentence.
